Legislation and Regulation: Switzerland

Ombudsman's Office

The newly implemented Financial Services Act (FINSA) provides for a mediation procedure before an ombudsman to settle disputes between clients and financial service providers. Financial services providers must be affiliated to an officially recognised ombudsman office. The FDF published a list of currently seven recognised banking ombudsmen.

New Swiss Data Protection Law (DPA)

With the revision of the Data Protection Act, the legislator is undertaking a paradigm shift; in the new legislation, the focus will be on the process of data processing, i.e. the entire data lifecycle, from collection and use to anonymisation or deletion. Previously, the focus was on the existence of data collections. The revision is also introducing new concepts such as profiling and tightening criminal sanctions. It adapts to most foreign legal systems, notably the EU GDPR. It is expected to enter into force end of 2021.

Contingents for third country workers

The Federal Council confirmed contingent of third country workers for 2021 at the same level as for 2020. It furthermore adopted a special regime for workers from the UK which no longer falls under the agreement on the free movement of persons with the EU. In total 3500 work permits are available for UK nationals.

COVID-19

With its communication of 2.10.2020 the FINMA abolished special exceptions for account opening for Swiss residents. It extended exemption for authentication of ID documents for foreign residents until 30.6.2021 if COVID19-related obstacles make the orderly procedure excessively complicated or impossible. In any case,

Duty to Report Vacancies

The Federal Council updated the list of job profiles that require vacancy reporting under the Swiss legislation on mass immigration. Vacancies in the segments, where unemployment is above 5% need to be reported. Due to COVID19 in several employment segments, that threshold has been trespassed. The Federal Administration updates the list.

Sustainable Finance

Sustainable Finance

The Federal Office of the Environment and the State Secretariat for International Finance published the second edition of the Climate Compatibility Assessment which was conducted during 2020. It was extended to financial firms allowing assessment of their portfolios also. The report concludes that the financial market still excessively invests in the expansion of fossil energy sources, at 80% with a mere 20% being invested in renewable energy sources. 20% of the portfolios submitted were "ESG compatible", they performed slightly better than others.

Swiss Green Fintech Network

To further strengthen Switzerland's position as a leading location for sustainable financial services, the State Secretariat for International Finance (SIF), together with industry representatives, launched the Green Fintech Network on 3 November 2020. The network's mandate is to identify areas where the conditions for green fintech in Switzerland could be improved. It should submit concrete proposals to both the government and the private sector. An action plan is expected to be published in spring 2021.

Info: SIF press release in DE EN FR IT

In summer 2020, the SIF conducted a survey within the Swiss green fintech sector on opportunities for concrete technological applications and potential obstacles for Swiss green Fintechs in terms of funding, availability of data or regulatory environment.

Digital

Cyber Security

The Reporting and Analysis Centre for Information Assurance MELANI published its latest half-year report. Attackers extensively exploited the new situation of work from home and remote contacts among staff. Attacks exploited social engineering techniques as well as the distribution of malware through attachments or links leading to a webpage where malware downloads. The quick setup of work from home networks opened vulnerabilities of networks and allowed attackers to infiltrate and extract ransom. Attacks used various channels to exploit network overload and the new ways of remote interaction.
